

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

December 15, 2011

Contact: Dan Gelber
Dan@DanGelber.com
305-345-7879

Miami Beach says "no casinos"

Residents of Miami Beach rally against the proposed bill that aims to bring high-stakes casino gambling to South Florida.

(Miami Beach) – Anyone under the illusion that the people of Miami Beach want high-stakes casinos should take note of the fact that last night the City of Miami Beach went on the record against casinos and in opposition to the proposed legislation to bring so-called destination casinos to Florida.

“Those of us who live in the casino bosses’ target zone have too much to lose. We have worked hard to build a wonderful community and the prospect of mega casinos here is perhaps the single greatest threat to our quality of life and the character of our community,” said South Florida No Casinos Chairman Dan Gelber.

The following Miami Herald article chronicles what happened last night. Click here for the full story.

See the protest for yourself below.

